JONAS HANWAY, SAVIOUR OF THE CHILDREN AND FOUNDER OF THE MARINE SOCIETY

a talk by Professor Tony Pointon

Jonas Hanway is one of Portsea's unsung heroes, founder of the Marine Society and largely responsible for pushing the Children's Act 1767 through parliament and ending the misery endured by many children, particularly chimney sweeps. This, and many other notable achievements, probably explain why there's a painting of him in the National Portrait Gallery in London and a monument to him in Westminster Abbey. Professor Tony Pointon will describe this and other commendable campaigns, some of which link Hanway to local landmarks such as the Square Tower.

Tickets: £4.50 per person

The Club will be open from 7pm and members are welcome to socialise with drinks available from the pay bar.
